Nabors Predicts Even Duff Line Not Ample Here

Railroad Commissioner W. A. Nabors, who has been spending four days in what he terms the "port section" of Texas, says his eyes are opened to Port Arthur growth. He leaves tonight for Austin.

During his stay Nabors made several trips to Port Arthur and Port Neches by land, water and rail, also visited Orange, and at these points, as well as Beaumont, took a careful survey of not only the rail accommodations but of water facilities as well, at the same time obtaining a working knowledge of the industries at each port.

Favors Duff's Cause

"To me, he said, it is almost unthinkable that the Waco, Beaumont, Trinity & Sabine Railway Co. certificate to build will not be granted.

"Even with this additional facility," he said, "the development will be such as to require even further railroads or extensions to keep pace with what looks like, to me, in the near future, a section composing one vast commercial center."

He said that no where else in Texas does he find the varied industries so great in number and capacity as they are in this section and that all this coming, so quickly seems proof to him that the development has just fairly started.

Says Policy Violating

Nabors declared that his general knowledge of this section since becoming a member of the railroad commission 11 months ago had led him to the policy of equanimity all the Texas ports in the matter of rail rates, but that "seeing was believing," and from this time on nothing could turn him from this policy.

Commissioner Nabors declared that with this visit and inspection he had visited all the Texas ports, except one or two of the smaller ones, from Point Isabel to Orange, and that he inspected all the main lines of the railroads in the state, except the Santa Fe. This road, he said, was on his program for his next work.

SPLAWN TALKS TO ROTARY CLUB

Rail Commissioner Sees More Rail Facilities Here

"The day will come, and let us hope it is not far distant, when you will have another railroad leading to the vast undeveloped areas back to the north and northwest, bringing the products of those areas to Port Arthur for ship loading."

Walter Splawn, railroad commissioner of Texas, declaring the transportation act should be amended to give state commission more power over intra-state railroad matters, and urging that section 28 of the marine act be repealed, made this assertion in commenting on the "wonderful possibilities of this district" during an interesting address before the Rotary club today noon. W. A. Nabors, also a member of the commission, addressed the body following the remarks of Dr. Splawn.

Among amendments to the law that should be passed immediately, Splawn suggested that there should be one more clearly defining the line of demarcation between state and federal jurisdiction. At present the "twilight zone" or the area of doubt, is too wide. Under the law as it stands, the doubts were usually resolved against the jurisdiction of the state authorities and in favor of jurisdiction of federal authorities. Matters that are largely local, such as intrastate rates, the regulation of depot facilities and the like should be under the jurisdiction of the state commission with no appeal to the interstate commerce commission, the only appeal being to the courts and on such grounds as confiscation of property.

"This is to say," Splawn said, (Turn to Page 10, Col. 5)

TABBY MOTHERS BABY RAT, TAKES IT HOME TO RAISE

NATURAL laws of felines to ward rates got a severe jolt when a nice, juicy young rat, with his eyes just opened was presented to an old cat with six little kittens at the home of E. A. Cary, 211 Fifth street.

Instead of mauling and chewing the dainty morsel of milk-fed rat, mamma tabby took him by the back of the neck, after the most approved manner of handling kittens, and placed him in the box with the six little tabbies. Cary said.

NOW the rat gets his dinner along with the kittens, and the old cat pats over him and licks him fondly. Cary declared, explaining that this has been going on for two days, and no amount of persuading and tempting will make the cat eat the rat.

"But you know, it seems so funny, I still kinder have a notion that the cat is fattening the rat for killing time, although now she's giving him all the attention a proud mother can bestow."

OPPOSE STAND TAKEN BY NEFF

No Names, However, Are Mentioned From Floor.

FIRST STANDING VOTE

Delegates Oppose Immigration of Cheap Labor

Delegates to the State Federation of Labor in convention here declared themselves this morning as unanimously opposed to sending an instructed delegation to the national convention for the nomination of a candidate for the democratic party. No candidate's name was mentioned.

To emphasize their attitude in favor of instructed delegates to the national democratic convention, the delegates called for a standing vote, which is the only one which has been taken during the convention here.

Opposes Band Jobless

The convention went on record as opposing a bill known as the H. J. Resolution No. 211, which if passed would provide for the playing of the United States Marine band at fairs and expositions in the middle west, fair circuit and on other circuits which include Texas. It is claimed by the convention that should this bill pass that it will jeopardize the livelihood of hundreds of musicians in this state. It was resolved that this federation instruct its officers to notify its representatives in congress from this state of the action taken by the convention in opposition to the employment of enlisted musicians in competition with civilian musicians.

The delegates to the convention also opposed the permitting of cheap laborers to come into this country as they claim such immigration aids in forcing additional idleness upon citizens of this country. It was resolved by the convention to instruct its delegates to the Forty-Fourth Convention of American Federation of Labor to use efforts in securing the aid of that body in remedying this defect in the immigration laws.

Resolutions to Veto

D. S. Davenport, chairman of the committee on laws, presented resolutions to the convention which had been submitted to him and stated the action taken upon them by his committee.

Resolution No. 8, by John Nising of Houston which proposed the establishment of a union label trades department with an officer in charge by the federation was not approved by the law committee and failed to be adopted by the convention.

Resolution No. 28 providing for a five-cent place for holding the Federation of Labor convention each year, naming Austin as the place, was voted down by the delegates after meeting with the disapproval of the committee on laws.

15 FAMILIES WANT ORPHAN

Youth, However, Is Carried To Beaumont

No less than 15 Port Arthur families wanted the 15-year-old boy who two older brothers brought to Port Arthur with them Wednesday and appealed to Sergeant M. H. Payne, army recruiting officer here, to find him a home for his hand and enlist them in the army.

But the offers to provide a home for the lost came today, after the brothers, waiting at the army recruiting station in the Dismukes building until late yesterday afternoon, became discouraged and went to Beaumont last night, Sergeant Payne said today.

The boys told the army sergeant that if they failed to find something to do in Beaumont they would return to Port Arthur this afternoon, and he is waiting to hear from them before he can put their young brother in a home here and send the two older boys into the army.

CHILD LABOR

Amendment By House Is Up For Consideration

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Twice threatened by decisions of the supreme court, federal regulation of child labor was to be taken up by the house today in the form of a constitutional amendment.

Congress previously passed laws regulating interstate commerce in child labor products and taxing commodities produced by child labor but in each case the supreme court ruled the legislation unconstitutional.

Final vote is expected tomorrow.

Million Dollar Issue Enjoined In 58th Court

BEAUMONT, Texas, April 24.—A temporary injunction restraining the City of Port Arthur from disposing of bonds to the amount of $1,000,000 was signed by Judge O'Brien in 58th district court this morning.

The name of H. M. Harris appeared on the application—that of C. A. Stewart having been obliterated. The suit is directed against J. P. Logan, mayor, and B. H. Wiley, J. J. Wade, city commissioners, E. H. Miles, city clerk, and G. K. Lomax, tax collector.

Court Reluctant

Judge O'Brien first stated that he did not want to sign the paper, and declared he would rather keep out of the matter. It was only after some deliberation and consultation with Frank Vaughan, the attorney who presented the petition, that it finally was signed.

What disposition will be made of the suit filed in 60th district court is a matter of speculation. It still stands but Attorney Vaughan stressed the importance this morning of having some action taken immediately.

Enjoined After Other Suit

The application is word for word like the one filed in 60th district court and alleges that such a bond issue is a violation of the charter of the city of Port Arthur.

No date for hearing has been set. The plaintiffs in the case will have to file $1000 bonds, after which the date will probably be set down.

RED INFLUENCE

'BACK OF PROBE'

Daugherty Attacks Sponsors Of Removal from Cabinet

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 24.—"Russian communism" was blamed by U. S. Attorney General Harry J. Daugherty at a testimonial dinner in his home here last night with long responsible for the senate investigations that forced him out of office.

The soviet failed to gain control of the labor organizations of this country and so arranged pilgrimages to Moscow for certain members of the United States senate, Daugherty said.

Senators Wheeler and Brookhart, conducting the investigation, were in Russia last summer.

Daugherty said he had given up his cabinet post rather than "contribute to a treasonable cause."

TROLLEY CO. FREED OF SEWERS EXPENSES

AUSTIN, April 24.—The supreme court yesterday held that the Dallas city commission did not have the legal right under the city charter to impose any part of the expense of building storm sewers in improved streets against the street railway company, therefore such assessments were void and the company is not liable for it. Decision was made in the case of Dallas consolidated electric street railway company vs. city of Dallas, the court of civil appeals being reversed and the district court affirmed.

1259 Delegates Are Entitled to Seats At Waco Jamboree

By HUGH NECENT

FITZGERALD

The Port Arthur News Staff

May will be a merry month for the people and a busy month for the politicians. First comes the presidential precinct, primary conventions. According to the Texas Tenth election law each of the 245 counties will be entitled to one vote for each 500 votes or major fraction thereof cast for all of the candidates for the gubernatorial nomination in the general primary election in 1925.

No county is to have less than one vote in the state convention to be held at Waco, May 27, to select forty delegates and forty alternates to the national convention in the city of New York in June to assist in the nomination of a candidate for president and a candidate for vice president for the democracy of the republic.

According to the expert calculation, there will be a total of 1259 delegates entitled to seats in the Waco convention. The votes in which the respective counties are entitled on this basis show that the democrats of the rural districts will have a large majority.

Harris county is entitled to the largest delegation.

This is the showing that will be made by the larger counties:

Harris, 57; Dallas, 53; Tarrant, 45; McLennan, 22; Grayson, 19; Hunt, 18; Bell, 17; Collin, 17; El Paso, 16; Ellis, 16; Travis, 16; Jefferson, 15; Lamar, 14; Hill, 13; Navarro, 13; Denton, 12; Johnson, 12; Hopkins, 12; Galveston, 12; Van Zandt, 11; Wichita, 11; Williamson, 11; Eastland, 11; Kaufman, 10; Latexa, 10; Milam, 10; Smith, 10.

DENIES CHARGE BY DAUGHERTY

Exiled Official Blamed Red Influence

CHARGE DRAWS FIRE

'Made More Reds Than 1,000 Agents,' Wheeler

WASHINGTON, April 24.—"Such unfaithful servants as Daugherty and Fail have made more bolsheviks in America in a few weeks than a thousand soviet agents could make in a decade," Senator Wheeler, Montana, declared today, in replying to former Attorney General Daugherty's "defense speech" in Columbus, Ohio, last night.

Wheeler's statement to the United Press was provoked by what he termed "Daugherty's cunning but baseless insinuations" that he and Senator Brookhart, Iowa, were "inspired" by soviet officials to investigate the department of justice.

"Distorted Truths"

"In his array of distorted truths," said Wheeler, "Daugherty has taken refuge behind the least resort of modern knaves striving desperately to divert the public mind from their own corruption. When all else fails they trot out the 'red peril' bugaboo. His pitifully absurd smoke screen will only meet with ridicule. But this discredited official does not exaggerate the dangers that threaten the republic if the Daughertys and the Fails are not driven from office. That is the danger the senate committee by barring the corruption in the department of justice is seeking to avert."

Flays Government by Blackmail

"There is a rising tide of discontent in America. Government by blackmail and the private sale of the public domain have brought it to the danger point. Nothing can check it if the bolshevik makers are left in office."

"That is the task to which the senate committee has dedicated itself. Washington must be made unsafe for traitors of the Jew Smith and Hoover and Manning type. Daugherty's bosom friends, it must be made impossible for another Daugherty to dispense soviet Russian justice in the legal department of the government."

Wheeler added that the "squall of a cornered rat" would not stop the investigation.

Kirby Denies Attempt To Halt Pine Probe

WASHINGTON, April 24.—John H. Kirby, of Houston, Texas, today in a formal statement denied he had attempted to impede prosecution of the Southern Pine association of which he was president, by the department of justice, as intimated before the senate Daugherty committee by Houston Thompson, chairman of the federal trade commission.

The Automobile Dealer Sells His Used Cars

The automobile dealer takes the used car in trade on a new one. Then he has to dispose of his used cars. The most progressive dealers have long ago realized that the most convenient and economical way is to use Classified Advertising.

In The News Monday one dealer ran a classified advertisement listing four used cars. Tuesday he sold three of these cars, the purchaser bringing a clipping of the ad as it appeared in The News, asking to see the car as advertised.

The cost was small, the result satisfactory, the sale was made. Classified Advertising in The News can do as much for you.

Rev. C. W. Rische, of Manheim, Texas, is presiding at the convention, which was opened at 10 a. m. today by Rev. F. W. Siebelitz, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church here. Following the opening exercises, Rev. C. Durow, of Lee county, was chosen as secretary.

Among the speakers here to address the convention is Rev. C. W. Gaertner, formerly pastor of Trinity Lutheran church here. Rev. Gaertner is a member of the Lutheran Texas board of missions, and will present the various phases of the mission work in Texas to the convention. Rev. K. G. Manz, of Austin, chairman of the Lutheran educational board, also is a visitor to the South Texas convention, and will speak on a work of his board.

A discussion on a paper read by Rev. H. P. Purst, of Wharton, on "The Promiscuous Prayer Permissible" was taken up by the ministers and educators at the morning session today. Rev. A. E. Moehs, of La Grange, reporter for the convention, said.

Present plans indicate that the Lutheran convention will be in session in Port Arthur throughout the remainder of this week and close about noon Monday.

Pat Marr Sentenced To 5 Years in Oil Frauds

TEXARKANA, Ark., April 24.—Pat Marr must spend five years in Leavenworth prison and pay a $5,000 fine for his oil stock operations in the El Dorado and Shattuck fields. Judge Younts today gave the El Dorado promoter the maximum penalty, following his conviction in federal court here of misusing the mails in promoting a dozen stock companies.

CITY ORDERS LUMBER TO RECOVER RESERVOIR

Upon the recommendation of Harrison Fisher, superintendent of the water department, city commissioners this morning voted to order a car load of lumber from Martin Lumber company to be used in recovering the reservoir in Gilman's circle. Martin Lumber company bid was slightly under one other bid received. Fisher was instructed during the meeting to employ the necessary labor needed to repair the reservoir.

MAN SHOT BY MAD WOMAN

Slayer, a Lawyer, Then Flees After Another

By United Press.
CHICAGO, April 24.—Mrs. Wanda Stoga, a lawyer, and recently an assistant district attorney here, today shot and killed Howard Manning, 39, and fired two shots at Mrs. V. K. Smith, wife of a wealthy advertising man. The shooting occurred at Plaza Park, exclusive Chicago suburb.

Mrs. Stoga leaped into a taxicab with the words, "Now I'm going to the city to kill my husband."

Hundreds of police officers have been detailed to hunt for the slayer. Smith, warned by his wife, immediately went to police headquarters and asked that a hunt be made for the slayer. Smith also told police that the lawyer was infatuated with him, and often had asked him to leave his wife for her.

Mrs. Smith telephoned that Mrs. Stoga rushed into the living room on the first floor of the house, and screamed out "I'm going to kill you," and pulled a revolver.

Manning ran in and Mrs. Stoga turned and fired one shot at him. The bullet struck Manning in the stomach and he died a few moments later.

The only woman bombster maker in the country is Mrs. Bessie Reburn of Seattle.

DEATHS OF TWO BY FIRE STILL A MYSTERY

Houston, Texas, April 24.—With numerous theories, and each blocked by other angles of the case, Houston authorities went into its third day of probe, delving into the mystery which surrounds the fire that destroyed a two-story frame house, claiming the lives of Ethel Patterson Rank, pretty 23-year-old nurse and W. # BURNT MEAL DEATH MOTIVE

Wife Slaying Tell Why They Did It

CHICAGO, April 24.—James De Joy, 27, who confessed to killing his wife, leaped from the third floor of the detective bureau today and landed head first on the concrete pavement. His skull was crushed and his death was believed near.

De Joy was being posed for a photograph when he broke away from a detective and dived head first out of the window, taking most of the window with him.

De Joy and Fred Potenza, confessed wife slayers, admitted to police that displeasure over their breakfasts played a large part in the murders.

After an all night examination, De Joy burst out to Captain William Schoemaker:

"Yes, she wouldn't get up mornings to cook my breakfast so I cut her throat."

To this was the added aggravation of burnt breakfasts when he got them, and constant bickering, De Joy said.

Potenza, who shot and killed his wife on the street here late yesterday and also shot his sister-in-law, told police burnt breakfasts constituted one of the chief reasons for the murder.

Through passengers on railroad trains traversing Arizona must dismount at any point in the state the governor ordered.

The court said testimony showed that the brakeman was an unfit servant and his employers were liable for his acts.

KLAN IN KANSAS IS ILLEGAL, SAYS REFEREE

TOPEKA, Kan., April 24.—The Ku Klux Klan is doing business illegally in Kansas, according to a report submitted to the supreme court by S. M. Brewster referee appointed to hear evidence in the attempt to oust the Klan from the state. Brewster said that the organization could not transact business in the state without being licensed as a foreign corporation.

The commission overruled the charge that the Klan was guilty of intimidation, saying that point had not been proven.

THREE HURT WHEN AUTO JUMPS BRIDGE

"THE WILD CAT"
When "The Wild Cat" comes to the Liberty tomorrow it will bring a real western story that is away from the real and dried things of "westerns" that have been seen in this city recently. "The Wild Cat" is a thrilling story of a pretty girl in the land of men where gunplay is an open-air pastime of the population. "The Wild Cat" tells an unusual story and is superbly acted by a fine cast headed by the sterling young actor, Robert Gordon. "The Wild Cat" is a brand new picture and was screened in the real western atmosphere.

NAME THE MAN
Spectacular scenes in which a howling mob scurries panic-stricken before the onrush of cavalry in the great court yard of Castle Rusheu, when Conrad Nagel, as Victor Stowick, mounts to a platform where he voluntarily casts from his shoulders the robe of Deemster, was one of the thrilling scenes filmed at the Goldwyn studio by Victor Seastrom in "Name the Man," a film adaptation of Sir Hall Caine's "The Master of Man."

With four batteries of cameras mounted on high platforms at various angles, and a corps of assistants to aid in handling the crowds, the noted director handled one of the largest mobs ever gathered on the Goldwyn lot.

SHERIFFS GUARD RANCH SLAYER

Fighting Cowhand Gives Up To Machine Gun Fire

By United Press.
LUBBOCK, Texas, April 24.—Will Ward, peg-legged ranch hand and slayer, was guarded today by sheriffs of four counties.

The sheriffs brought Ward here to stand trial on charges of murdering Dr. S. H. Windham, wealthy rancher.

The battling cowhand is also accused of slaying Ben Montgomery and shooting T. H. Moore, with intent to murder.

The shot Montgomery and Moore, ranchmen, in a gun battle near Roundup yesterday, when he stood off a posse of 200 citizens and officers single handed for 12 hours and emerged without a scratch when his ammunition gave out.

With two six shooters, a rifle and considerable ammunition, "Pegleg" entrenched himself in a cattle vat and

5 Operations—15 years suffering with constipation—Kellogg's Bran restores health

Mr. Lansing's case is typical of thousands of others. He found permanent relief from constipation in Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. Read what he says:

Dear Sir:

I have been afflicted with constipation for the past 15 years, and during that time I have been in four different hospitals and submitted to five different operations that were the result of constipation. I was getting so bad that every meal I ate soured on my stomach. Two months ago I was advised to eat your Kellogg's Bran. I tried it, and I was trying everything I could hear of. From that day on I have never taken a physic. My stomach does not sour any more and my bowels move regularly morning and evening. Yours sincerely, Frank Lansing, 2306 Jetties Ave., Marion, Ind.

For permanent relief, eat Kellogg's Bran regularly. Two tablespoons daily—in chronic cases with every meal. It is guaranteed to bring results, or your grocer will return your money.

You will like the delicious nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran—so different from ordinary bran, which are unpalatable. Eat Kellogg's Bran with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in the recipes given on the package. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and kneaded, is served by leading hotels and clubs in individual packages. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways, and be wise.—Prov. 6:6.
I pity the man overwhelmed with the weight of his own leisure.—Voltaire.

The Editorial Mind

However, comma—
Odds and Ends and Comments on Our Morning Mail

Another illusion is destroyed. We'd always envied prehistoric people, believing they had an easy time of it. But they had to work 25,000 years ago. This is disclosed by discovery of tools of labor near the petrified human skeletons found in California. The tools were a bone awl and a rock ax.

The ax may have been used in hunting, but the awl indicates sewing, one of the earliest forms of work. Man has to toil for his bread, no matter in what part of the world he lives or in what period of history. The few who escape work are supported by the toil of others.

Roads can be made absolutely fool-proof for traffic, a conference of eastern experts claims. Their program, for making accidents next to impossible, includes street widening, slower auto speed and other usual methods. Such a system can be approached but never attained.

If autos continue multiplying as fast as now, the day is ahead when cities will have to limit autos to overhead streets built like elevated railroads, or use tunnels. Even then, the highways would have to be divided into fenced lanes, one car to a lane, to avoid smashes.

Uncle Sam should reduce the number of migratory birds a hunter is allowed to shoot. So claims the Isaac Walton League, an organization to protect woods, waters and wild life.

"Bird bag limit," of course, is just a method of making sure there will be plenty of birds to shoot. We not only cling to our most savage and brutal sport, we even, in effect, breed its victims with a methodical system that must delight an efficiency expert.

How much does it cost to travel? Magnus Johnson insists that $5 a day is enough expense allowance for a government employee. It depends, of course, on how much railroad fare has to be bought.

Travel has become an expensive luxury. Corporation executives flaunt that a high-grade salesman making long jumps and stopping at good city hotels, couldn't get by for less than $10 a day. It takes twice as much now, on account of lower buying power of the dollar, just as a job that isn't paying twice as much as it paid before the war is really paying less. We are dealing with 50-cent dollars.

Goodbye, screen door. A Boston firm will market a "doorless door." When flies try to enter, they are blown back by a constant draft of fanned air which, however, is not powerful enough to interfere with the entrance of customers. A hunt for meat markets and other shops when flies enter whenever the screen door is opened.

In trying out this device in Boston, no flies were available, it being winter. So the company telegraphed to Texas and had 2,000 flies rushed by express and fed on the way. Talk about civilization getting complex.

The auto and telephone are transforming life in the jungles of Africa, writes St. Bartholomew in London Daily Mail. Many a native chief has a Ford. The natives have heard about the radio and Baker predicts that the savage villages before long will have wireless sets and loud speakers.

Eventually there will be no escape, no haven of refuge, from the white man's mechanical system.

Telling It To CONGRESS

SECRECY IN TREASURY
The reason why tax returns are now shown is because wealth has been powerful enough to influence Congress to keep the amount of money that wealth was making secret from the people of the United States. That law ought to be changed. No part of the public business is private. All of it belongs to the public.
—Senator Reed (D., Missouri).

MELLON AND DRY LAWS
Is it any wonder that the prohibition laws have not been enforced? This prohibition law has been in the hands of Mr. A. M. Mellon, one of whose businesses, and one of whose principal business, I am informed, has been the distillation of liquor and the making of beer.
—Senator McKellar (D., Tennessee).

POOR PAY, POOR MEN
Every time a contracting weaver has a vacancy he takes one of our best (government) weavers, and we have to take on a new man who does not know anything about the game, and a poor man that, because all the good laborers are working for private concerns. We have a lot of broken-down laborers working for us.
—Frederick S. Freed, Treasury Department, before Senate Committee on Appropriations.

SAVING MONEY?
I might say the government is spending about $145,000 a year in San Francisco on rented buildings alone, which could be saved if they had a large building out there.
Lewis E. Haas, San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, before Senate Committee on Appropriations.

LABOR LEADERS AID FIGHT TO CLOSE PORTS TO ALIEN FLOOD

A quarter of a century ago the leaders of organized labor began their crusade against the landing of countless hordes of aliens on these shores from other lands. It was an economic proposition with the labor leaders from the beginning and they fought on and on, despite rebuffs and defeats.

Three presidents voted drastic immigration acts. Taft, Roosevelt and Wilson placed the seal of their displeasure as well as disapproval upon these acts. Now a new immigration bill has been enacted by both houses of the congress and according to Washington advice President Coolidge will permit the measure to become a law without his signature.

The vote for it was overwhelming in both branches. This new measure will permit the entrance of about 161,000 immigrants a year, for the next three years, this being a two per cent quota of the foreign born population in this country in 1890 according to the census of that year.

It bars Asiatics. It breaks the gentleman's agreement with Japan. It permits the coming of South Americans including Mexicans. It does not lift barriers against the Canadians. It appears to be an "America for Americans" immigration act with a welcoming hand to all comers from the Latin-Indian countries and the Canadian possessions of the British Empire.

Those who are permitted to come from Europe will hail mostly from the British Isles, Germany, the Scandinavian countries and France. As the senate passed the bill 161,000 immigrants a year will be permitted to enter the United States until 1927, and thereafter only 150,000.

These 150,000, according to Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, will be distributed among the different nationalities on the same ratio that the number of citizens of each national origin bears to the total white population of the United States.

In an effort made by Senator Reed to show the composition of the white population as of 1920, making allowances for the national origins of the colonial stocks as well as those which have come since, he estimates the total number of persons of British and Irish origin at 56,000,000, the Germans at 13,500,000, the Italians at 3,600,000, the Poles at 7,700,000, the Russians at 2,500,000, the Swedes at 2,300,000 and the Dutch and Norwegians each at about 1,500,000.

In coming years the Italians will go to the South American countries; the Germans will make a little Germany out of Brazil and another of Paraguay. As for the Japs, now that the gentleman's agreement has been broken, Mexico is an open and a fair field for the subjects of the Mikado and all the Latin-American people may welcome the little brown brother.

More than forty thousand Mexicans entered Texas through the regular channels last year and it is said that one hundred thousand were smuggled or smuggled themselves over the Rio Grande river.

To prevent this in future an appropriation of $1,500,000 was made by the congress to strengthen the Rio Grande patrol guard system. Another burning issue has been removed from the face of the fact that this is presidential campaign year.

WALTON VINDICATED BY KLAN JUDGE

Former Governor Jack Walton of Oklahoma has been vindicated, this time by District Judge A. S. Wells of Oklahoma City. Walton was charged with diverting public funds, there were five indictments for him to face, the allegations in the indictments were identical with those on the same subject which were included in the bill of impeachment on which Walton was removed from office. Judge Wells sustained the demurrers of the defense and Walton walked from the court room with a clean bill of health. A very remarkable man, this judge, A. S. Wells of Oklahoma. Concluding the statement of his decision the judge said:

"I based my opinion solely upon the laws of Oklahoma and I hope that J. C. Walton will be fair enough to say that he got a square deal from at least one klanman."

Fair enough; but Walton was kicked out of office by the lawmakers; he was branded as a grafter by the lawmakers; he was dismissed as unfit by the lawmakers and now adjudge elected by the people who boldly proclaim himself to be a klanman returns a verdict that Jack Walton is not guilty as charged in the five indictments, that he did not divert public funds. And if all this be true, then why was Jack Walton kicked out of office by the lawmakers of Oklahoma?

Politics is a nasty game when the enemies of a high official whether those enemies happen to be personal or political, go after his scalp. Politically speaking Walton is a dead one and this Oklahoma judge gave him a clean bill of health six months after his funeral had taken place.

The Policeman and the Boy
Sometime or other we are going to get it into the national noggin that everybody's first business is teaching.
No man's life counts for much in nature's ledger except as he helps youth.
"The day will come when the grocer and the factory owner, the banker and everybody else must find his place in our educational system. The real schoolhouse is not bounded by four walls. It is bounded by the Atlantic and the Pacific.
And now the idea is sprouting that the policeman, instead of being the scarecrow and suppressor of boys, should be the friend and helper of boys.
A regular Irish policeman, by the name of Ryan, in Chicago, has been touched and electrified by a ray of wisdom straight from the mind of destiny.
With true Irish vigor he is declaring that his thirty-five years of service in the department have brought him to the conclusion that the best way to fight crime is to prevent the growth of it among boys.
In fact he has decided that it is much more effective to cure crime at the beginning, with a suggestion, than to try to cure it at its end, with a club.

Your Money AT WORK

Brief but important lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

Because of its activity of people who hoard money, governments must constantly regulate and supervise the output and circulation of metallic currency.

All commerce consists in the exchange of commodities of equal value, so when we allow money to act as a medium of exchange it is easy to see that pieces must be so nearly equal in metallic content that all folks will indifferently substitute one coin for another, without going through the process of testing each coin to determine its actual weight.

Therefore in order to keep coins in circulation, as issued from the mint, and out of the hands of bullion-brokers and exporters, governments must see to it:

1. That standard coins conform as nearly as possible to the standard weight at all times, and—
2. That adequate measures be taken for withdrawing from circulation all coins which are worn below the least legal weight, to prevent their degeneration into token coins.

to reveal true Americanism to these immigrant children is the policeman. No one, so well as he, can show them that, in America, law is the servant and friend of the people and not the people's oppressor and enemy.

The rotten idea that afflicts all our administration of justice is the same sort of idea that corrupts our international relations. It is that the natural state of man is a state of war. So we have the army of lawbreakers pitted against the army of law enforcers.

There should not be any army at all. Law breakers should be recognized as defective and treated as such, not as equals and fought as such.

Crime is really a disease and should be treated in proper hospitals by intelligent and scientific methods.

And the policeman, being that officer of the law who is closest in touch with the people, will vastly increase his efficiency when he conceives of himself not as a "terror to wrongdoers," but as one whose chief business is to save youth from falling into the clutches of a terrible disease—the disease known as crime.

TAXING RIGHT ALONG!
We believe that with our present organization we can, by June 30, 1925, have the 1900 and 1921 corporation taxes out of the way, and have the individual income taxes current. Within the last year, since last July, we have cut our personnel some two thousand. To cut it further will deplete us and hamper us in carrying out the program which we have outlined.—D. H. Blair, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, before Senate Committee on Appropriations.

HIS BROTHER'S WIFE by RUDY AYRES 6 NEA SERVICE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Dolly a goodness, in love with her poor sailor, Robert Durham. When Nigel Bretherton, who has money, falls in love with her, Dolly gives up Robert and marries Nigel. The marriage proves an unhappy one. When war is declared, Nigel is given to enlisting. He leaves Dolly in the care of his friend, Mary Purnell. Mary comes to live in Dolly's flat. Dolly goes for a walk and an accident meets Robert Durham. He tells her he has prospered and that now he has money and a wife and child. When word comes that Nigel has been killed in action, Dolly marries Robert in London. Nigel's older brother, David, calls to see Nigel's widow. The mistake Mary for Dolly.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
"I came straight to you. I am afraid you must have thought me cunning—underling. If you saw the letter I wrote. I was sorry as soon as it had gone. I came home earlier than I had really intended in the hope of seeing Nigel before he went to France. If he got my letter—"

"It was sent here; he never saw it."

"I am glad."
The silence fell again; the man's eyes were wandering round the room. It was comfortable and tastefully furnished, but he thought of the Red Grange—his lofty rooms, and priceless pictures, and thought that his brother must have loved this woman very much to be content.

Mary's eyes followed the direction of his gaze; it had fallen on the little table where lay the few possessions of Nigel's that had been sent home after he died.

She indicated them with a hand that trembled.

"A friend of his sent those back after—afterwards. There is a letter for you amongst them—we have not opened it. It was written the night before he was killed."

Bretherton walked over to the table, and stood looking down at the little collection. They might have belonged to any man—the pipe, the shabby tobacco pouch, the little bundle of letters. David Bretherton put out his hand and picked up a little gold locket lying conspicuously there.

"That was our mother's," he said. "Yes," said Mary dully. She could remember in happier days when Nigel had worn it from his watch-chain; she had not touched it since it came home—she had not been able to bring herself to move any of the little things since Dolly had put them there.

"That was our mother's," he said. "Yes," said Mary dully. She could remember in happier days when Nigel had worn it from his watch-chain; she had not touched it since it came home—she had not been able to bring herself to move any of the little things since Dolly had put them there.

David was fingering the little locket; it was flat, and engraved with a worn monogram.

He touched the little spring, and the case opened.

Mary was watching him listlessly.

CHAPTER VII
The Photograph
After a moment he turned, and looked across at her.

"This is your photograph in here," he said.

She started, a wave of color rushed to her pale face.

"My photograph? Oh, no—"

He came across to where she stood. He held the little locket to her open on the palm of his hand.

"I am sure this is your photograph," he said again.

She bent toward him, wholly doubting, then she gave a little stifled cry. Her own face looked back at her in a miniature from the gold case; an old photograph which she had given to Nigel long ago—so long ago that she had lost it until this moment, when she saw it in unexpected.

David shut the case with a little snap.

"Yes it is yours," he said. "Yes! I had forgotten. I gave it to him so long ago."

There were tears in her voice and tears in her heart as she thought of that long ago—before he was married—when she had hoped—when she had believed that perhaps some day—

—she checked her thoughts with a bitter sigh. How long he had carried that photograph with him! She was afraid to try and answer the question. She wondered dully if Dolly had seen it, and if so, what she had thought.

David was watching her.

"You have known my brother some time?" he asked.

"Nearly six years."

He turned away. He went back to the little table and laid down the locket gently, as if it were something he were afraid of hurting.

Across the room Mary watched him. He was not in the least like his brother. She noted herself kindly; and yet—she was fiercely glad that he was not. She could not have borne it had he looked at her with Nigel's eyes, suited at her with Nigel's lips. This man was taller, thinner, more delicate looking; his hair was brown, too. Nigel's had been fair, with a boyish tinge in it; this man's was straight.

He looked much older than Nigel, more manly, perhaps, more reliable; she realized this vaguely, even while she resented it.

"You will not stay on here, of course," he said after a moment.

Mary started.

"Here! In this flat do you mean?"

"Yes. You are young—you cannot live alone."

"I lived alone till I came here," she half smiled. "I am not very young," she told him, with a touch of whittiness.

His grave eyes searched her face. "You cannot live alone; you would expose yourself to death."

She felt the tears rising. She turned her face away.

He came back to the table. "You said that there was a letter for me from Nigel."

"It is with the papers there."

"May I take it?" he asked.

"Please."

She heard the rustling of the scrap of paper in his hands. It seemed a long time before he spoke again.

"You have not read this?"

"I?" She raised her eyes to him.

He made no comment. He put the letter into the breast pocket of his coat. There was a grim line about his mouth.

She watched him disinterestedly. For the first time she noticed how her coat was about the shoulders. She rose hurriedly.

"You are not through; please take off your coat. I ought to have asked you before. And can't I offer you anything—some coffee, some wine?"

He shook his head. "I had dinner before I came, and I must be getting on. I want to go down home tonight."

Her face lit up sensitively.

"To the Red Grange?"

"Yes. Have you been there?"

"I have."

"It is a fine old place. It has been let since I went abroad, you know, but the lease was up last month. I shall live there myself now."

"Yes." He was buttoning his coat. "If there is anything I can do for you—" he began hesitatingly. "I hope you will remember that I am Nigel's brother. If you are needing money—" She looked surprised.

"Thank you; I have all I want. But there is this flat and the furniture; I don't know what to do with it."

He glanced round.

"The best thing would be to sell everything. You had better get right away; there is nothing so painful as memory."

He took her hand. "You must not stay here alone," he said decidedly. "I will think what can be done, and write to you."

CHAPTER VIII
"You have loved Nigel?"

She followed him into the hall, and then, as he stood there in the dim light of the narrow passage, for the first time she could trace a likeness to his dead brother. It was only indefinable—something in the cut of his shoulders, something in the turn of his head; but for a moment she could almost cheat herself into the belief that it was Nigel who stood there.

Binding tears rushed to her eyes; for a moment she hid her face in her hand.

When she looked up again, David Bretherton was watching her. She began a stammering apology.

"I am so sorry. Just now you looked so like Nigel—"

She bit her lip; she could not go on.

His grave face softened wonderfully. He laid a gentle hand on her shoulder.

"You loved Nigel?" he said.

She answered him suddenly: "Oh, I did—I did."

Something there seemed no shame in the confession made to this man; Nigel was dead, and the knowledge of her love could not harm him. Even afterwards, when David had gone, she did not regret the little impulsive admission.

CHAPTER IX

When David Bretherton left Mary, he took a taxi and drove straight to an address in Hampstead.

There was a little frown on his face, and during the drive he sat staring before him lost in thought. He went on up his hill to the flat, he took a taxi and drove straight to an address in Hampstead.

McCray Forged Note, Bank Head Admits

INDIANAPOLIS, April 21.—A dual line of attack was being developed today by District Attorney Elliott in the trial of Governor Warren T. McCray on charges of fraudulent use of the mails.

While continuing to quiz witnesses as to the methods used by McCray in procuring "forged notes" with Indian banks, Elliott opened up a line of questioning seeking to prove the government's contention that McCray forced a number of the notes.

The defense suffered a setback when Oliver Stout, president of the Fletcher American National Bank of Indianapolis, testified McCray admitted to him last fall he had signed the name of "J. L. Williams, of the Lincoln Stock Farm" to a note the Fletcher American Bank accepted from the governor for discount.

LETTER FROM ANNETTE ANDERSON TO LESLIE PRESCOTT MY DEAR MRS. PRESCOTT:

Mrs. Prescott Sr., is quite anxious to see you baby again. She is getting restless, and she wished me to write you and ask you if you would come down here and bring him.

It's astonishing my dear Mrs. Prescott, to realize what that baby has done to your husband's mother. She is quite mad about him. I've been wondering if it would not be a good thing to invite her up to see you. We could go to a nearby apartment house or hotel for a few weeks, and then I think she would be much more content to come back to the quiet and peace of her old home than she is now.

I'm growing very fond of your husband's mother, Mrs. Prescott. Of course she is self-centered, as old people always are, and narrow as becomes her Puritan ancestry, but for all that there is sterling worth within her stern facade.

And now she has a definite object in life, and that definite object is your baby. It seems to me that it might be feasible to bring the oldest and the youngest members of your family together again for a short time.

Of course, if anything makes it impossible for you or Mr. Prescott to do this, you can write me, and you may be sure that your confidence will be inviolate. I will make some excuse to keep Mrs. Prescott Sr. here.

I want to tell you, however, how much she thinks of you. All the love that she formerly bestowed upon that old maid called Leslie, Bradford, she has evidently transferred to you.

Of course I know it is absolutely impossible for you to make a visit upon your husband's mother so soon again, and that is the reason I am asking you if it would be convenient for her to visit you. It would give her something to think about on her return.

She would see you and the baby in your own home, she would place you in her accustomed surroundings, and this means a great deal to old people. Anything you may write me about this will be kept in strictest confidence, as I said before.

Having to hear from you soon, I remain

Yours respectfully, Annette Anderson.

Night Letter From Leslie Prescott to Mrs. Mary Alden Prescott

Jack will be home day after tomorrow, dear mother, and we would like it very much if you would come and see us for a few weeks. There is a good trial, for if it had helped others, why not me? I have taken 36 bottles of the medicine and am never without it in the house. # Prepared to Give Mike Thompson Fight for Honors

By BILL ARCHER

PAUL JONES, the most popular American lad that has stepped through the ropes of a squared circle in Houston since the time of Pat Brown, is coming back to Port Arthur to give the local fans another treat. Paul will be here tomorrow night to meet Mike Thompson, Washington grappler.

Jones, who has recently added Spider Kelly of New York to his training camp which already held Johnny Lehl in it, has been attracting large crowds of fans to his gymnasium daily as he goes through his training tactics in preparation for his bout tomorrow evening.

Reports received here yesterday aver, "Between 340 and 400 persons have been watching him work out every day since it became known here that he would wrestle in Port Arthur Friday against Thompson." Julius Sidel, Houston promoter, remarked Wednesday in a telephone conversation with this writer:

"Jones, bearing in mind the fact that he is in the best condition he has ever been in, Sidel went on, 'He's a great deal flashier than he was when he appeared over there in Port Arthur against Mums, and he has prepared for a tough match, believing this fellow Thompson will be a tough buy.'

"Jones is confident he will win, though," Sidel hastened to add to the remark concerning Thompson's toughness.

The Houston grappler, accompanied by his trainers and Sidel, will leave Houston tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, and will arrive in Beaumont about noon. The party expects to be in Port Arthur an hour later, ready for the null in five days tomorrow evening.

To Stop at Ula's

As usual, the weather and his punchy will stop at Ula's hotel, and will be ready to be met by friends and admirers during his stay there.

Jones and Thompson are perhaps the most equally matched grapplers who have been pitted against each other in the local arena, although both agreed to wrestle at catchweights. Thompson is weighing around 135 pounds; Jones is weighing around 130. They are both tall and rangy, with long, powerful arms, and the strength and endurance of the professional bull pup, who has lots of tenacity.

It is said of both that neither man knows when to stop, and that both wrestle with their hearts in the game. They have youth on their side, and neither has been long in the game.

The match Friday evening starts promptly at 8 o'clock, with several good prelim boys opening the main go.

COUCH MEETS HALL TONIGHT

Local Grappler Clashes With Beaumont Boy

The scene is set for the final match tonight in Port Arthur Athletic club between Young Jesse Couch, local undefeated 155-pounder, and Charlie Hall, Beaumont grappler.

The two men have been in training for a week in preparation for the match, and each is anticipating a victory. From Couch tonight came the statement:

"I know Charlie Hall is a tough boy to beat, but tonight I will trim him. I will be wrestling with a butt finger, but that won't stop me."

Hall asserted that:

"Couch won't have a chance. I've trimmed him before, and I can do it again."

The match will get underway at 8 o'clock, with several good prelims on schedule.

Young Couch is in good condition, and despite his crippled finger, will probably give Hall a stiff run for his money. Hall is a more experienced wrestler than the local prodigy, but the muscular strength and bulldog tenacity of Couch is counted by his followers to offset that.

It is understood the betting on the two men is about equal.

While Other Teams Loll Along, Muggsy Pushes His Squad of Players Ahead

NEW YORK, April 21.—Following the policy of John McGraw that it is just as dangerous to trifle around in the spring as it is when the wire is in sight, the New York Giants are down to the serious business of getting themselves a commanding lead in the National League pennant race.

It is quite obvious that the Giant leader is aware of the fight that he has on his hands and that he has sent his team out to get the jump while the jumping is good.

The early spring schedule is all in favor of the Giants.

While the strong western clubs are pounding away at each other, the National league champions have until June to make the most of the weaker Phils, Robins and Braves. If the team can keep on its toes, it ought to get into the second-third of the pennant race with a lead of at least ten games. With a commanding lead, the Giants will be hard to catch.

The form shown by young Raymond Dean, the $50,000 rookie pitcher, who beat the Robins yesterday must have been just as encouraging to McGraw as the fine game turned in by Jack Bentley on the day previous. From what has been seen of the Giants so far it is possible that much has been accomplished in the strengthening the notorious weakness of the pitching staff.

Base Hit Best Weapon to Win

Babe Ruth is inclined to believe that all the talk about a revival of base running is the bunk.

"The pennant in the two major leagues this year is going to be won by the club that can make base hits in the old pitch rather than stealing second more often than the opposition.

"Speed is a desirable asset in a ball player, but not so much merely to steal bases as to take advantage of the opportunities that are offered in the field as well as on the bases.

"With the lively ball sent in use, few ball games are going to be decided by a seven-run margin. Stealing second base is a one-run system.

"Base hitting in both major leagues must get much tighter before base running becomes a big factor in deciding ball games."

JOHNNY MOHARDT IN SEMI-PRO LOOP NOW

YANKS, INDIANS UPSETTING DOPE

Meanwhile, the Unexpected Happens to Other Squads

By HENRY L. FARRELL
Called Press Sport Editor

NEW YORK, April 21.—Failure of the New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians to get started has been one of the big upsets of the early major league season.

Rated as the most powerful teams in the American league, the two clubs have been filling the role of the weak sisters and they are crowding the floundering St. Louis Browns for last place.

In five games, the Yankees have won only one while the Indians have dropped three out of their first four games. The slump of the Yankees, however, has been more serious as the schedule started them against weaker clubs while the Indians had to face what seems to be the real strength of the league.

Neither the Yankees or the Indians have been able to get the expected results from their pitchers. Along with the collapse of the pitching staff, the champions have also been nursing a "first-class" batting slump.

Blames Bad Weather

Higgins blamed the poor start of the Yankees to the bad weather in Boston but does not offer any explanation of the reason of why the weather conditions did not help the Red Sox as well.

New York fans are not worried much perhaps as the followers of the Cleveland Indians are concerned. New Yorkers feel that the beatings they are taking now will have good results, because the Yankees should lose any game they might have that the pennant is theirs chiefly for the asking.

While the Yankees and the Indians are trying to find themselves, the Detroit Tigers are playing the best ball in the league. The White Sox, leading the league, are playing way over their heads and they can stay up in the race only until the stronger clubs get going. The Boston Red Sox have been the surprise of the year. They are not a pennant-contending club but they are prospects for the first division.

Playing every card for all that it is worth, the Giants are out in front in the National League and moving like a steam locomotive. McGraw is taking all kinds of chances and getting away with them. Twice he has started rookie pitchers and got away with it. The Reds and the Pirates are doing as well as could be expected against such strong competition and the Cubs are playing fine ball.

DAN BROUTHERS WAS GREAT BATTER

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 21.—In a game between the Poughkeepsie team and Saugerties of the Hudson River league in 1901, a big man playing with Poughkeepsie made two home runs and four singles in six times up.

One of the homers traveled 325 feet and over the fence; there was no telling how far it traveled after going over the fence.

The batsman's name was Dan Brouters and he was 45 years old when he performed that remarkable feat in batting.

Dan Brouters came into prominence as a player in 1877.

In a game one day, in sliding into second, he fell on Second baseman McGinn, who died of the injuries received.

ROOKIES RELEASED TO WESTERN LEAGUE

SALE OF United States Government INDIAN LAND EQUITIES

These lands are located in Southeastern Oklahoma in a well-polluted section of the state, traversed by five trunk lines, railroads, lands being treated near good market towards schools, churches, roads, etc. They are highly valuable for the raising of kind of live stock, fruits, poultry and dairying, also for their oil and gas possibilities, being situated in Mid Continent oil belt. Drilling operations are now being carried on in the counties where these lands are located. ALL OIL, GAS AND MINERAL RIGHTS GO WITH THE LAND. THIS WILL UNDOUBTEDLY BE YOUR LAST OPPORTUNITY TO SECURE LAND ENTIRELY SURROUNDED BY PRODUCING OIL FIELDS. A noted geologist, formerly of Tulsa, says that Southeastern Oklahoma (where these lands are located) ARE THE RICHEST UNDEVELOPED OIL AND GAS FIELDS IN OKLAHOMA, and that practically all of Oklahoma lying along Arkansas line below Fort Smith is rich in MANGANESE, IRON, OIL, AND GAS. There being deep OIL sands that will produce many times the quantity that has already been produced in Oklahoma.

Oil men in Southeastern Oklahoma believe that oil drilling will establish the counties wherein these lands are located, as proven territory, thus making it possible for the purchasers of these lands to obtain valuable oil and gas leases. Most of these lands are valuable for their timber, if marketed intelligently, will pay considerable of the purchase price.

Oil, Gas and Timber Leases Will Be Secured for Purchasers of These Lands

BY STANLEY

"Same, please?" asked a footman.

The next place that Mister Muggs took the Twins in Once-Upon-A-Time Land was to see Jack and his mother. "No, not Jack and Jill, or Jack Spratt, or Jack the Giant Killer, but Beanstalk Jack."

Oh, yes, of course Beanstalk Jack did kill one giant, but the other Jack killed seven.

Well, the little automobile whizzed along over seven mills and seven hills, and came to a fine city. And asking the policeman where Beanstalk Jack lived, they were told that the first house on the finest street was his, and they would have no trouble in finding it.

It was on the finest street, but it was so full of automobiles all going in one direction that they had to take their place in line and move slowly with the crowd.

They soon discovered the reason for such a crowd. There was a very big, ugly house and the cars were stopping one by one to let the people out.

"We weren't invited, but I'm sure it will be all right," said the little fairyman. "No you Twins go on in while I look the car."

A big crowd in the head and but-tone opened the door of the magic car and helped them out.

Mister Muggs jumped after them two steps at a time and caught up to them at the door.

"Naues, please?" asked a footman in a voice that seemed to come from his nose. "The lady and the other two are stuck out a silver tray for their cards."

"My goodness! I forgot mine. Well, all right," said the fairyman, putting himself all over as if he were searching his card case. "Just say 'Mister Muggs and Nancy and Nick, please.'"

So they followed the man to the door of the drawing-room and there he stopped, ending loudly, "Mister Muggs and company."

And then, with his nose sticking up in the air like the spout of a teapot, he marched off, leaving the three visitors in the doorway with everybody staring at them.

Jack saw them at that minute and rushed over to his "people." He cried, "Come over here. Glad to see you. Come on over and meet my mother."

But were not dressed for a party," said Nancy. "We look perfectly awful."

"No, you don't," said Jack. "You look just right, the way I like you. You are just the kind of people I want these servants. Mother and I were both happier before we got all the minnits' money and became the richest people in town. We are going back to the country and build a little cottage and keep a cow again. And in a little while you will be here and I am sure we will all have a better time."

Jack's mother was as nice as Jack, although Nancy remembered that she had lost her temper when Jack stole the cow for a handful of beans, and threw them out of the window.

"Oh! He had a happy time and promised—"

Schools and Pupils

There was some difference between the education of Greek and Roman children. Greek girls had to stay home all the time. Unless they were taught to read by parents or servants, they never learned. In Rome, the girls were allowed to start to school when they were 7 years old. They usually remained at school, however, only a few years.

Roman boys started to school at the same age, but remained much longer. They went to private schools and their fathers had to pay the teachers. The poorer children, of course, had to go without schooling.

In Greek schools pupils were taught to recite poetry and to play musical instruments. The Romans seem to have thought such teaching useless. They made the children learn to read and write to count and to do small problems in arithmetic.

At the same time, Roman school pupils generally used a small rod with a point at one end. They cut words with this point on wax-covered wood. Like Greek schoolboys, they carved words by rubbing the blank end of the rod over them.

Older persons in Rome used paper and ink and wrote on paper.

This picture shows a Roman schoolboy counting.

Color Cut-Outs

A Suit for the Crown Bearer

A Suit for the Crown Bearer
 "This is the way we'll have the May Day Pageant," announced Betty Cut-out. "First Henry will come out on the lawn and do his pester stunt. All the people will be sitting around in a big circle and all the girls will be holding up a throne. Then the punk roses will do their dance while Henry rings bells and changes his costume. Next will come the May Queen procession with Henry leading as the crown-bearer. The May Queen will sit on her throne and the girls will be holding up a throne."
 "Here's the suit of green leaves Henry will wear," Nancy said.
 "What kind of leaves do you think they are?" Tom Cut-out asked Billy. The boys had just poured the group of girls into the street.
 "They're the leaves of the rose tree, lettuce or cabbage leaves," grinned Tom, while the girls all yelled.
 "Get out! This isn't your pageant!"

Color the suit leaf green with a scarlet sash.

LABOR RULE NEAR END

LONDON, April 23.—Labor government has only a few more weeks to live before a vital decision comes that will determine its fate. It is a general election, Sir Kingsley Wood, M. P., writing in the "Western Mail" declares.

His opinion is shared by many political observers, who point out that Ramsay MacDonald now is in daily need of at least fifty liberal votes in the house to protect him from overthrow.

WHO IS SYLVIA?

Who is Sylvia? What is she?
That all the swains commend her?
Holy, fair, and wise is she;
The heavens each grace did lend her,
That she might adorned be.

Is she kind, or is she fair?
For beauty lives with kindness.
Love does to her eyes repair
To help him of his blindness—
And, being help'd, inhabits there.

Then to Sylvia let us sing
That Sylvia is excellent;
She excels each mortal thing
Upon the dull earth dwelling;
To her let us garlands bring.
—William Shakespeare.

All Employees Guests At Banquet

Employees of the Deutscher Department store were guests last night of Deutscher at a banquet and "get-together" meeting held at the First Methodist Church, South.

It was the first of a series of meetings which Deutscher intends to have for his organization in the future.

In opening the meeting Deutscher told of the growth of his store from its small beginning to its present size.

"The credit is not entirely mine," said Deutscher. "None of these things could have been accomplished were it not for the loyal and sincere cooperation given me by you."

Leonard Power, president of the Port Arthur Business college, spoke to the employees on salesmanship, giving them some very practical help.

He spoke of some examples of fine salesmanship at the Deutscher store that had come to his attention.

Rollin Drake, superintendent of Case and Package Division of The Texas Company spoke on service, what it means and how to improve it. The personal contact element in sales was stressed.

Mr. Murt Hedon complimented the "Deutscher Family" on its perfect organization and told of the many fine things which he had heard from those who traded at the store.

J. M. Black of the Deutscher store responded, thanking the speakers and assuring them every employee was trying to live up to the compliments being paid them. On behalf of the employees he presented Mr. Deutscher with a very fine pair of opera glasses. Mr. Deutscher with Mrs. Deutscher will leave Sunday night for several months tour of Europe. They expect to be gone until September 1.

select delegates to the county and state conventions for the selection of delegates to the national convention. In 1920 less than 75,000 delegates participated in these precinct conventions.

Texas has a voting population of 1,400,000. Half of this number are said to be democratic, or at least they call themselves. The making of a nominee for president has been left largely to the professional politicians and the office holders. In other words, it was left to the machine to control the conventions from precinct to state.

For this reason the machine leaders usually selected forty delegates and forty alternates ever willing to take the advice of the leaders or follow the instructions of their leaders or bosses.

Four years ago the democrats were swamped on November election day and the republicans returned to power in the nation. Now the conditions are ripe for democratic victory in November should the Madison Square Garden convention pick candidates for president and vice president who will not be compelled to defend their records but who can go before the people and ask that the democratic party shall be returned to power in order that the American standard shall be swept clean, the rights of the people maintained, law enforcement against all alike shall be the order of the day, that the government shall be honestly and economically administered and returned to the old marks of the fathers.

"That even though the order of the state commission is such cases does in theory and somewhat in fact burden interstate commerce, the federal regulatory bodies would be given no jurisdiction in such local and state matters.

Urges Amendment

Splawn also recommended that Congress be urged to amend the interstate commerce act in such way as to provide for regional or district commissions to be set up in convenient districts so that resident commissioners within these districts may replace the attorney examiners who now at great expense travel back and forth across the continent making records in interstate commerce cases. He gave among the reasons that the interstate commerce commission is now overburdened with a multiplicity of causes; that the attorney examiners who go out to hear these cases have no authority other than to make reports to commissioners who do not hear the cases; that many complaints involve matters that are by no means wide in their scope, but confined to some particular region or district; that Washington is so remote from a large percentage of the population of the United States as to make it impracticable and unduly expensive to continue to make final arguments in commerce cases in the city of Washington; and that it is desirable that those who pass upon these cases shall themselves have heard the evidence and be familiar with the conditions in the localities involved.

Commissioner Splawn also advocated that Congress be asked to further amend the present act so as to relieve the interstate commerce commission of its obligations to prepare a plan for consolidation of the railroads of the country into a limited number of systems. Among the reasons he suggested were that the mandates of the statute are clearly in conflict; that the interstate commerce commission has made no study of costs of transportation as required by the statute; that the matter of value of properties has been given no consideration in the consolidation hearings held; and that the economics that might be realized from consolidation will, according to those most competent to speak, be more offset by increases in expenses; and that the benefits of consolidations appear to be so doubtful and the risks so grave that it is unwise to undertake to group the railroads into a final and rather rigid series of systems.

Explains Section 28

"Section 28 of the Marine Act," Splawn said, "should be repealed by the present Congress. This act was designed to aid the merchant marine. Where there is a difference to a port domestic use and for export, the domestic rate applies unless the commodity is shipped in an American bottom. Thus it was expected to penalize shipments in foreign bottoms and so encourage the movement of commerce in American ships.

"But it so happens in the very nature of the case the spread between rates for domestic and export purposes is not uniform at all ports. At some ports the rates on many commodities for domestic purposes are identical with the rates for export and at other ports there is a spread and sometimes this is considerable. The result will be that goods will be routed via ports where rates are the same for both domestic and export purposes. Then it becomes immaterial so far as cost is concerned as to whether the goods move out in American or in foreign ships.

"Instead of aiding American ships this law merely has the effect of diverting tonnage from some ports to others. This will particularly be true in many cases as between Texas and other ports. Since special rates have frequently been put in to Texas ports goods will under this law avoid the Texas ports for the where there will be less penalty for shipping in foreign bottoms and emphatically for the speedy repeal of this section. The order of this law does not go into effect until June 20. Congress has ample time in which to act."
